Trauma Aware and Healing Informed Care

Acknowledgement of Country

In the spirit of reconciliation the Anchor Excellence team acknowledges the Traditional Custodians of country throughout Australia and their connections to land, sea and community. We pay our respects to their Elders, past, present and emerging and extend that respect to all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people today.

Objectives for this session

- The current aged care context - The Aged Care Reform Agenda
- To become familiar with the language used when we discuss trauma aware and healing informed care
- To define trauma aware and healing informed care in the aged care context
- To outline and describe the principles of trauma aware and healing informed care
- Position trauma aware and healing informed care within the Final Draft of the Strengthened Aged Care Quality Standards (2024)
- To identify instances where trauma aware and healing informed care relates to Special Needs Groups
- To provide working examples of how trauma aware and healing informed care related to care and services planning for older people

ANCHOR EXCELLENCE

Useful Definitions

Trauma Aware and Healing Informed Care (TAHIC) in the aged care context

TAHIC acknowledges the many traumatic events and influences an older person has experienced throughout their life.

These traumatic events shape the older person's interface with the aged care and services delivery systems they engage with. These significantly underpin the older person's approach and attitudes. For example, an older person from a geopolitical war zone may have PTSD and is defensive and non-compliant with the health care team especially if they are wearing a uniform.

For effective TAHIC to be in place a whole of organisation commitment is needed as TAHIC seeks to establish:

- Safety
- Trust
- Choice
- Collaboration
- Empowerment

ACQSC definition

Trauma aware and healing informed care recognises that a number of older people have experienced trauma in their lives and considers how this may impact them when providing care. Trauma aware and healing informed approaches must be used to restore wellbeing and enable older people to self-manage and control their care decisions.

As part of trauma informed care, providers and workers should:

- Understand the effects of trauma on the older person (including through assessment)
- Promote safety and trust (create a safe environment, interact in a respectful way)
- Empower older people (by providing transparency, informed consent, collaboration, choice and control)
- Build connections, focus on strengths and promote quality of life.

Rights Based Approach

A Rights Based Approach is a framework to protect and promote the rights of the older person. The older person is the centre of all care and service decision making and provision.

A Rights Based Approach promotes:

- Autonomy
- Dignity
- Improved quality of life
- Enhanced wellbeing

Trauma Aware and Healing Informed Care in an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Context

This approach to care:

- Is sensitive to past trauma
- Acknowledges and supports the impact of multiple causes of trauma and distress
- Acknowledges and supports unresolved and/or accumulated trauma
- Supports holistic health
- Supports recovery and restoration of spiritual balance

Special Needs Groups (SNG)

The ACQSC (2023) has identified a number of population SNG. These groups have a history of individualised and institutionalised trauma.

SNG	Example
People from Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander communities	Involuntary relocation. Family violence. Poverty of education. Poor health literacy. Poor health outcomes.
Older people from CALD backgrounds	War related trauma, prejudice and discrimination, financial trauma, family separation, linguistic barriers.
People who live in rural and remote areas	Poverty of resources. Poor access to health and education services to support health literacy.
People from LGBTQIA communities	Discrimination, physical abuse and institutional violence, financial abuse, difficult interactions with health services, family separation, sexual assault.

Special Needs Groups (SNG)

SNG	Example
People who are veterans of the Australian Defence Force or an allied defence force including the spouse, widow or widower of a veteran	Combat, witnessing death, being a prisoner of war (POW). Exposure to chemical warfare agents. Delayed recognition of war service. Drug usage.
Parents separated from their children by forced adoption or removal	Loss of self, sexual abuse, physical abuse, family separation, institutional abuse, poverty, mental health issues.

SNG	Example
People who are care leavers (which includes Forgotten Australians, Former Child Migrants and Stolen Generations) First Nations Peoples	Institutional abuse, family separation, childhood neglect, financial poverty, poverty of learning, long term chronic health disease, poor interactions with healthcare providers, poor interactions with government agencies.
People who are homeless, or at risk of becoming homeless People who have been incarcerated and released	Physical abuse, institutional abuse, neglect, financial abuse, sexual abuse, loss of autonomy, chronic health disease, poor interactions with health and other government agencies.
People of a kind specified in the Allocation Principles 2014

Older people- Examples of special needs

SNG	Example
People with cognitive impairment	Physical abuse, neglect, financial abuse, sexual abuse, loss of autonomy
People living chronic mental health conditions	Physical abuse, institutional abuse, health abuse, neglect, financial abuse, sexual abuse, loss of autonomy
People with low literacy levels	Physical abuse, institutional abuse, health abuse, neglect, financial abuse, sexual abuse, loss of autonomy
People who have been incarcerated	Physical abuse, institutional abuse, health abuse, neglect, financial abuse, sexual abuse, loss of autonomy

What is a traumatic event?

Traumatic events for older people are any events that cause a disruption to their wellbeing. These can be:

- Physical
- Cognitive
- Emotional
- Social
- Judgemental attitudes to diversity by health care staff and other bureaucrats
- Being forcibly removed from family and care leavers
- Geopolitical and war experiences as a refugee - PTSD, physical disability, mental health illness
- Loss of self - routines, independence, autonomy, identity
- Loss of capacity - physical, cognitive, emotional, social and physical injury preventing return to live at home

What is a traumatic event for an older person?

- Historical abuse
- Loss of autonomy and independence
- Domestic Violence
- Feeling invisible
- Elder abuse
- Loss
- Chronic physical illness
- Acute physical illness
- Relocation-consensual and non-consensual
- Financial distress
- Disability-invisible and visible including mental illness
- Loss of mobility
- Memory loss, distress, anxiety, anger, depression, withdrawal
- Injury

Impact of trauma on older people

Trauma results in loss and grief for an older person. These losses and associated grief may go unrecognised and be compounded over time culminating in deep, unresolved pain, anger and lack of connectedness with family, friends and other structured support processes.

Some examples of this in an aged care setting are:

- Inability to adjust to change in circumstances
- Agitation
- Behaviour changes-labile
- Isolation and withdrawal
- Refusing care and services including medication and nutrition and hydration
- Lack of clarity-change in decision making status
- Forgetfulness
- Suicidal ideation and attempted suicide

Trauma Aware and Healing Informed Care & The Charter of Aged Care Rights

The screenshot shows the Australian Government Aged Care Quality and Safety Commission website. The header includes the Australian Government logo, the commission name, and contact information: "Complaints & concerns 1800 951 822", "Food, Nutrition & Dining Hotline 1800 844 044", and "Contact us". A search icon is also present. Below the header is a navigation menu with options: "About us", "For older Australians", "For workers", "For providers", "News & publications", and "Get involved". A prominent blue button labeled "Make a complaint" is located on the right side of the menu.

The main content area features a breadcrumb trail: "Home > For older Australians > Your rights > Charter of Aged Care Rights". The title "Charter of Aged Care Rights" is displayed in a large, bold, dark blue font. Below the title, there is a section titled "On this page:" with three links: "The Charter", "Provider responsibilities", and "More information".

The text below the links states: "The Charter of Aged Care Rights (the Charter) sets out the rights of all people receiving Government-subsidised aged care services. The Charter applies regardless of the type of care or service." It further explains: "The Charter makes it easy to understand what quality care looks like. It also gives clear expectations about the services supplied by aged care providers. The Charter is a requirement of the Aged Care Act 1997." A video player is partially visible at the bottom of the page, with the title "The Charter of Aged Care Rights" and buttons for "Watch later" and "Share".

On the left side of the page, there is a sidebar menu under the heading "For older Australians". The menu items are: "Defining quality care", "Finding quality care", "Your rights", "Charter of Aged Care Rights" (which is highlighted), "Aged Care Quality Standards", "Health & wellbeing", "Safety in care", "NDIS & younger people", "Consumer advisory bodies", and "Resources for older Australians".

A large, semi-transparent watermark "ANCHOR EXCELLENCE" is overlaid diagonally across the page. A vertical URL is visible on the right edge of the screenshot: "https://www.agedcarequality.gov.au/older-australians/your-rights/charter-aged-care-rights".

What are the benefits of using a TAHC approach to care and services planning, delivery and evaluation?

- Promote cultural safe interventions
- Decrease any stigma and preconceptions about a population group
- Increase consumer participation
- Enable identification of suicide and suicidal ideation
- Increase knowledge and skill staff capacity
- Consolidation/Rationalise of service pathways - government support
- Quality use of medications
- Improved/simplified mental health service access
- Improve support for transition into and out of care
- Improved trust in health services
- Improved autonomy-choice and control
- Reduction in internal and external complaints
- Improved community connectedness
- Improved staff safety
- Engagement with care and services
- Reduction in refusal of care eg personal care and medications

Capacity building for effective TAHIC

- Education
- Targeted recruitment
- Partnerships in care requirements
- External referrals policy and process
- Escalation policy and process
- Capability profile

Case Study

Sam, aged 82, fell at her home of 60 years, sustaining a fracture neck of femur. Family support was limited as the family lived interstate and overseas, leaving Sam with no local support. The home of 60 years has fallen into disrepair and hoarding was identified by the hospital social work team.

Even as a short term measure post surgery, Sam returning to the family home was not a viable option. Entry to a RAC was the preferred option. Sadly, Sam didn't get to return to or visit the family home.

For Sam, this was an immeasurable trauma. With this trauma came both visible and invisible pain.

How would trauma aware and healing informed care support Sam to transition to this level of residential care?
